

“Mental illness affects 1 in 5 people, and Bridgehaven provides a place where those people can go and surround themselves with others who understand their challenges and hurdles to enjoy a ‘normal’ life.”

-- Dan Goldstein,
Bridgehaven Board Member

Sometimes a personal connection is the catalyst that inspires talented, hard-working individuals in the community to provide passionate support for organizations such as Bridgehaven. Dan Goldstein’s sister began suffering from bi-polar disorder several years ago, and Dan has found at Bridgehaven the opportunity to better understand her condition and be able to empathize with her daily struggles.

Dan’s involvement as a member of the Bridgehaven Board of Directors for the past three years also has allowed him to help spread awareness about the disease of mental illness, which he believes affects more people than anyone could imagine.

Dan currently serves as a National Account Sales Manager at GE Appliances, where he has worked for the past ten years. In addition to volunteering at Bridgehaven, Dan also is actively involved with ECF and GE Volunteers.

Born and raised in Louisville, Dan enjoys spending time with his wife Carey and two daughters Elise and Sally. He also likes golf and travel and considers himself an avid sports fan.
